DETENTIONS
UNDER THE INTOXICATED
PERSONS ACT
DURING 1987

The Intoxicated Persons Act

The Intoxicated Persons Act, 1979 acknowledged that it was no longer appropriate to treat the heavy drinker as a criminal. However, at the same time it was clearly recognised that the objectives of the Act would have to be limited in scope, and the treatment/rehabilitation model was not envisaged as the primary concern of the legislation. Instead, the legislation adopted a welfare/management approach which would not inhibit rehabilitation, as did the provisions of the Summary Offences Act.

Briefly, the Intoxicated Persons Act, which came into effect on the 17th March, 1980, provides that if a person is intoxicated in a public place and is either:

- (a) behaving in a disorderly manner; or
- (b) behaving in a manner likely to cause injury to himself or another person or damage to property; or
- (c) in need of physical protection because of his incapacity due to his being intoxicated;

then that person can be detained and taken to a proclaimed place by a member of the police force or an authorised person. Provision is made to become 'authorised' under the Act.

Any person who is taken to a proclaimed place may be detained there for 8 hours or until he ceases to be intoxicated - whichever occurs first. Provision is also made to release the person sooner if a "responsible person" is willing and capable to undertake their care and the detained person is willing to be given into the care of the responsible person.

Proclaimed Places

At the present time "proclaimed places" consist of:

- (a) all police stations in N.S.W.
- (b) the premises of voluntary agencies which have applied to become proclaimed places
- (c) remand shelters run by the Department of Youth and Community Services. (This last group is only for juveniles.)

Because of the increasing availability of proclaimed premises outside of police stations the Act was amended in 1985 to provide that an intoxicated person shall not be taken to a police station for the purposes of detention under the Act unless:

- (a) no other proclaimed place which has facilities adequate for the detention of the intoxicated person is close by;
- (b) it is impracticable by reason of distance or the unavailability of necessary resources to take the intoxicated person to the intoxicated person's home;
- (c) the intoxicated person has been refused entry into a proclaimed place, not being a police station; or
- (d) it is otherwise impracticable, for a reason similar to a reason specified in paragraph (a), (b) or (c), to take the intoxicated person to a proclaimed place other than a police station.
